Western Union Telegraphic Code

(UNIVERSAL EDITION)

.. 1901 ..

To the Public :

The WESTERN UNION TELEGRAPHIC CODE (Universal Edition) differs most strikingly from all other codes. Not only is it vastly superior in number of phrases and in convenience of arrangement; but it brings its users in touch with the whole world. Hitherto, the users of codes have been able to communicate, by code, only with the limited number of persons having the particular code used. The publication of the Western Union Telegraphic Code has changed this very materially.

It furnishes the only Universal Code System in the World

By registering in this work the Code is RENDERED ACCESSIBLE TO CORRESPONDENTS IN TELEGRAPH AND CABLE OFFICES OVER A LARGE PART OF THE GLOBE. No other code offers similar advantages.

It is of the highest importance to business men that antiquated codes having a limited circulation should be eliminated from the situation. Users of the wires are thoroughly alive to the fact that the Western Union Telegraphic Code, because of its universality, has greatly simplified and must ultimately revolutionize the telegraph and cable business.

The Western Union Telegraphic Code combines accuracy, economy, saving of time, and above all SECRECY, where secrecy is required. The words in this code having been selected from the Berne OFFICIAL VOCABULARY and being numbered consecutively, subscribers are fully protected against possible contingencies arising from any future action by the International Bureau of the Telegraph Administration, even though the use of Official Vocabulary words, as now seems probable will be the case, should be made arbitrary by the CONVENTION of 1901.

We desire to impress upon the public the necessity of according due consideration to these facts for their own protection and profit.

The Western Union Code, in 1898, was adopted by the United States War Department; by the United States and Canadian Commissioners to the Paris Exposition of 1900, and by all Departments of the Canadian Government, and was designated for deposit with the British censor at Aden by the Governments of the United States, Canada, and Japan, in 1900.

EXPLANATION.

For the benefit of those who are not familiar with Codes, the following explanation as to the use of this book is given. The code words (or words which are to be telegraphed) are arranged in alphabetical order, beginning with BEERKAR on page 9 and extending in consecutive order throughout the entire Code. The numbers which immediately precede the code words have no part in the ordinary use of this book and are chiefly for the purpose of enciphering messages.

Messages may be enciphered when absolute secrecy is required. This can only be done by a prearranged understanding with a correspondent to use a key number (or series of key numbers) by means of which a certain word preceding (or following) the word intended is used; thus, if the key number should be — 10 and the message should be “Regarded financially safe, but said to be engaged largely in speculative business,” instead of telegraphing DORMIREBBE, the sender would use the tenth word preceding this, which is DORMIDOR. If the key number should be + 10, the word would be DORMITARON.

Pages 9 to 471, inclusive, consist of various phrases and sentences grouped under alphabetically arranged heads. The sentences and phrases themselves, being arranged alphabetically under each head, will be found easy of reference. Each phrase or sentence is to be represented in the message by the code word immediately opposite. Whenever one or more dashes occur in a phrase or sentence, the sense is incomplete, and the code word representing this sentence must be followed by plain language (or other code words) in the order in which the dashes occur, to complete the sense. The blank spaces which are distributed throughout these pages, as well as those on pages 472 to 484, are available for special phrases which this book does not contain, and which may be filled in by the users themselves.

Pages 485 to 533, 562 to 609, 630 to 641, and 695 contain code words arranged in tables, each code word representing several conditions which are indicated in the headings, at the top of each column and at the side of the page. The blank tables (pages 610 to 629 and 662 to 681) are provided for those who, in using this book, require additional tables containing technical matter, and to be of any value must be filled up by the user of the book. Pages 696 to 796 contain a carefully prepared list of technical trade terms, phrases, and descriptions, as well as a number of tables of trade specifications.

A careful study of the following examples should enable any one to use this book intelligently. They also serve to illustrate the saving which may be effected by its use.
